

Advice for 15-18 year olds #garyvee #shorts

When you're like 1516 you don't realize that you're not even born yet They literally are sitting there thinking they're getting close to having to have their shit figured out kids I got a big one for you You know how your parents and teachers are telling you like you gotta get fucking focused You gotta figure out your shit You're not gonna believe this It's really fucking funny None of them have their shit figured out None None It's a big passion of mine People that follow me here know how much I had this with modern medicine Do you know that they're going to live to 100 and 30 real shit They need to be high risk They need to follow their actual dream Actually they need to mitigate regret You know what is really hurting for a lot of people in here The shit they didn't do at 2030 that they wanted to because they thought they were supposed to or their mommy made them do it or society told us I get it But if you're a musician if you want to be a stay at home dad if you want to coach Little League whatever it is at this age for the next 20 years nothing but that and then if you didn't have the talent if it didn't bounce your way if you weren't good enough if it just didn't click then at the ripe age of 33 you can go get a regular job
