Summary

The speaker talks about their experiences in the entertainment industry, starting as a child actor in commercials and later becoming the host of a show on Fox Kids. They had the opportunity to interview popular bands like the Backstreet Boys and No Doubt, and even performed on stage with New Kids on the Block. They then started their own production company and created a talk show in their parents' basement, filming commercials and scripted content. Currently, they are working on a scripted show called The Charlotte Chronicles.
