Summary

The speaker is a former US SB basketball star and philanthropist who has written a second book titled 'Darling, You're Not Alone'. The book explores the idea that extraordinary light exists alongside extraordinary darkness, and was inspired by the need for hope, inspiration, and positivity in the world. The speaker's first book was based on a personal experience, while their second book is a work of fiction. They were motivated to write their next book by their dad's question about when they would write it. The speaker always loved reading and felt inspired to write their own book, believing that if they think they can do something, they should do it.
