Summary

The Saban Theater in Beverly Hills is a historical and cultural landmark that used to be called the Fox Theater and was used for vaudeville performances. It is now a 2000-seat theater that hosts a variety of concerts and performances, including rock concerts and musicals. The theater was remodeled by Haim Saban and now includes a 10-room boutique hotel and a recording studio. The venue has a family-like atmosphere and a community of music lovers and creators. The Beat Junkies offer DJ lessons and aim to teach everyone the art of DJing.
