

The Re-Education of Jordan Peterson: Why His Clinical Psychology License is Under Threat

<https://silosolo.com/654260>

Summary

The speaker's clinical psychology license is in jeopardy because of their political opinions. The college of psychologists has filed 13 lawsuits against the speaker based on complaints from people online. The speaker is pursuing legal action, arguing that their freedom of conscience and speech are being violated. The college has violated its own standards by pursuing complaints that are based on fourth-hand information and false claims. The speaker is upset about the requirement for social media retraining, seeing it as a bizarre and unnecessary request.

Silo sample questions

- Why is the clinical psychology license of the speaker in jeopardy?
- What actions have been taken against the speaker?
- Why is the speaker pursuing legal action against the college of psychologists?
- How has the college of psychologists violated its own standards?
- Why is the speaker upset about the retraining requirement?

Topics

clinical psychology license in jeopardy
lawsuits and complaints
freedom of conscience and speech
violation of college's own standards objection to retraining requirement

Key Takeaways

- The speaker's license is in jeopardy because they have opinions about politics that the college of psychologists disagrees with.
- The college of psychologists has filed 13 lawsuits against the speaker, based on complaints from people online. The lawsuits include allegations related to tweets about public figures, criticism of political leaders, and comments about climate models.
- The speaker is pursuing legal action because they believe their freedom of conscience and speech are being violated. They argue that the college's actions are not only targeting them, but also interfering with the rights of professionals in general.
- The college has violated its own measurement standards by pursuing complaints that are based on fourth-hand information and false claims that the complainants were the speaker's clients.
- The speaker is upset about the requirement for social media retraining because they believe there is no evidence to suggest that such training would make them a better therapist. They see it as a bizarre and Orwellian request.

Click here for the full transcript

Click here for the source