

NAHMIER ROBINSON | COLORADO FOOTBALL Ø<BÈ

<https://silosolo.com/533725>

Summary

This Silo talks about the core values an athlete needs to succeed, the key influences in the speaker's life, the challenges and attributes of being a short athlete, the speaker's views on the recruiting process and commitment, and how academic commitment relates to success in sports.

Silo sample questions

- What are the core values an athlete needs to succeed?
- What are the key influences in the speaker's life?
- What are the challenges and attributes of being a short athlete?
- What are the speaker's views on the recruiting process and commitment?
- How does academic commitment relate to success in sports?

Topics

Core Values

Key Influences

Challenges of Short Athlete

Recruiting Process

Academic Commitment

Key Takeaways

- The core values an athlete needs to succeed are working hard, not skipping reps, and having a teammate who pushes you to get better.
- The key influences in the speaker's life are his dad, who taught him the value of working hard, and Jamal Crawford, who encouraged him to be himself and play his game.
- The challenges of being a short athlete are the need to work harder than taller athletes, the importance of playing with heart and instincts, and the necessity of building confidence to overcome psychological barriers.
- The speaker believes that not everything in the recruiting process is as glamorous as it seems, and that commitment is the most important aspect of playing for a coach and a team that align with the athlete's values.
- Academic commitment is emphasized as a necessary part of excelling in sports, and the speaker highlights the importance of staying on top of academics while excelling on the field.

Click here for the full transcript

Click here for the source