Key Takeaways

- Work hard, have confidence, trust the process, and keep developing as a player and as a person.
- When he was in his second year of playing football and received inside knowledge and extra practice from his dad, who was a high school football coach.
- He realized that he wasn't good enough to play at a division one level as a linebacker or tight end, so he learned long snapping to play at a high level and stand out to recruiters.
- He addressed the concerns by creating a video in snowy conditions to prove his form and dedication, which impressed the coach and secured his place at the university.
- Set daily achievable goals to become the best player you can be, rather than solely aiming for a Division I scholarship, as it's not the only measure of success in football.
