

KARMELLO ENGLISH | MICHIGAN FOOTBALL

<https://silosolo.com/506757>

Summary

This Silo talks about the advice for high school players trying to go D one, challenges faced in high school, emphasis on the recruitment process, lessons learned from the high school experience, and the influence behind choosing Michigan University.

Silo sample questions

- What advice does the former football player have for high school players trying to go D one?
- What were the challenges the former football player faced in high school?
- What does the former football player emphasize about the recruitment process?
- What did the former football player learn from his high school experience?
- What influenced the former football player's decision to choose Michigan University?

Topics

Recruitment

Training

Challenges

Decision Making

Academics

Key Takeaways

- Be yourself, focus on academics, go the extra mile in training, and make a 40-year decision instead of a four-year decision.
- The challenges included not being able to go to parties, having to focus on training instead, and making the decision to prioritize success over comfort.
- He emphasizes the importance of choosing a school that makes you happy, focusing on academics, and making a decision that sets you up for success outside of football.
- He learned that everything is not given to you and that making the decision to play football changed his life.
- He chose Michigan University because it offered top academics and the opportunity to get a degree while playing football.

Click here for the full transcript

Click here for the source